Graduate education, with support from the provost and the vice chancellor of research and innovation, introduces the Recruitment Visit Reimbursement Program. This program is designed to encourage faculty and departments to invite prospective graduate students to visit S&T. When your department hosts a prospective graduate student, graduate education will help faculty and departments reimburse the prospective graduate students up to $500 of their travel costs.

For more information about the program and how to apply, visit grad.mst.edu/faculty/recruitmentfunding/
