The office of graduate studies has become graduate education. This name change will be implemented gradually with a full implementation completed by fall 2023, when the 2023-24 graduate catalog is released. Graduate education, located on the second floor of Centennial Hall, provides services and development opportunities for graduate students; collaborates with campus constituents to advocate for graduate students and academic programs; and engages with various university leaders, faculty and staff to improve the graduate student experience.
